

Figure 2. Log x linear frequency rank plots (geometric distributions show as a straight line) of the distribution of the ten most frequent color words in English, Spanish and German. As can be seen, all the distributions are geometric, and the average frequency of English color words is far higher than in Spanish and German